Network for Investigation of Delirium: Unifying Scientists

It has been a busy spring for us at NIDUS! Be sure to check out our website deliriumnetwork.org to see what new resources and information we have added. We look forward to seeing many of you at the American Delirium Society meeting in June!

2018 Pilot Grants: Call for Proposals

The NIDUS Pilots and Innovation Task Force is offering two $50,000 pilot grants for proposals related to delirium research. The purpose of these awards is to encourage innovative research that will advance investigation in delirium and lead to future grant funding. Early career investigators or established investigators new to delirium research are encouraged to apply, as well as PIs who are already involved in delirium research.

Applications due November 7, 2018, 5:00pm EST.

Visit deliriumnetwork.org/pilots/2018-pilot-awards/ or download the 2018 NIDUS Pilot Award Application Instructions PDF for more information about how to apply.

Apply for the NIDUS Delirium Boot Camp 2018: Due June 20!

The Delirium Boot Camp is a 2.5 day intensive training course in delirium research, featuring a mock NIH review session, interactive CAM training, and didactic sessions covering a range of delirium-specific topics. Due to limited space, participants must apply in order to attend. Please note, applicants must submit a short research proposal, so start working on your application today! The 2018 Delirium Boot Camp will be held from Oct 3-5, 2018 in State College, PA.

New Resource: Delirium Instrument Info Cards

The NIDUS Measurement and Harmonization Core has developed a set of informative 1-page descriptions of commonly used delirium measurement instruments. The goal of the cards is to provide an easy to use reference to help researchers and clinicians select the best tool for their purposes.
